Fiberweb is one of the largest groups by revenue in the nonwoven industry and produces fabric materials, in both rolled and converted forms, for use in hygiene and industrial speciality products.

Fiberweb has built strong market positions in each of its chosen market segments. In the industrial segment, nonwoven fabrics find their way into a variety of applications and Fiberweb manufactures filtration media, geotextiles, housewraps, roofing fabrics and specialist wipes for use in the aerospace and graphic arts industries. In the hygiene segment, Fiberweb manufactures materials used in baby diapers, feminine care products, adult incontinence and in cleaning products.

Its scale, global reach, range of technology and strong market positions in a broad range of specialized areas sets it apart from many of its competitors. Fiberweb's high standards of service and supply coupled with its close co-operation with customers helps to build and maintain strong, long term customer relationships. Fiberweb also makes substantial investments in technology, research & development to address the fast changing market demand. Nonwovens expertise is critical to the successful development of new products, continual enhancement of product quality and cost optimization.
