

An Update on SAE J1488 and ISO 16332 Water Separation

Gary Bessee

Kavitha Moorthy

Abstract

Water removal efficiency is of vital important with the new high pressure common rail fuel systems. Both ISO and SAE filter test method committees are working diligently to improve the current test methods to meet the new challenges. This presentation will discuss the latest changes for both documents and the pros and cons of each.